Poin. Villaines. } set upon them, they all run away, and Fal- staffe after a blow or two runs away too, leaving the booty behind them.

Prin. Got with much ease. Now merrily to horse, the theeues are scattered, and posselt with feare so strongly, that they dare not meet each other, each take his fellow for an officer, away good Ned, Falstaffe sweare to death, and lards the leane earth as he walkes along: wert not for laughing, I should pity him.

Poyne. How the rogue roard

Exeunt.

Enter Hotspur solus, reading a Letter.

But for mine owne part, my Lord, I could be well contented to be there, in respect of the loue I beare your house.

He could be contented, why is he not then? in respect of the loue he beares our house: he shoves in this, he loues his own barne better then he loues our house. Let me see some more.

The purpose you undertake is dangerous.

Why thats certaine, tis dangerous to take a cold, to sleep, to drinke; but I tell you (my Lord foole) out of this nettle danger, we plucke this flower safety.

The purpose you undertake is dangerous, the friends you haue named uncertaine, the time it selfe vnforted, and your whole plot too light, for the counterpoise of so great an opposition.

Say you so, say you so, I say vnto you again, you are a shallow cowardly hinde, & you lie: what a lack-braine is this? by the Lord our plot is a good plot as euer was laid, our friends true & constant: a good plot, good friends, & ful of expectatiō an excellent plot, very good friends; what a frosty spirited rogue is this? why my L. of Yorke cōmends the plot, & the general course of the action, Zounds & I were now by this rascal I could braine him with his Ladies Fanne. Is there not my father my vnckle, & my selfe, Lord Edmund Mortimer, my Lord of Yorke, & Owen Glendower? Is there not besides the Douglas? haue I not all theire letters to meet me in Armes by the ninth of the next month? and are they not some of the set forward already? What a pagan rascal is this & Infidell? Ha, you shall see now in very sincerity of feare and cold heart, will he to the King, and lay open all our proceedings. O, I could diuide my selfe,

Henry the Fourth.

selfe, and go to buffets, for mouing such a dish of skim Milke with so honorable an action. Hang him, let him tel the King, we are prepared. I will set forward to night. Enter his Lady.
How now Kate, I must leaue you within these two houres.

Lady. O my good Lord, why are you thus alone?
For what offence haue I this fortnight been

A banisht woman from my Harries bed?

Tell me, sweet Lord, what is't that takes from thee

Thy stomacke, pleasure, and thy golden sleepe?

Why dost thou bend thine eies vpon the earth,

And start so often when thou sittest alone?

Why hast thou lost the fresh blood in thy cheekes?

And giuen my treasures and my rights of thee,

To thicke-eyd musing, and curst melancholy?

In my faint slumbers, I by thee watcht,

And heard thee murmure tales of yron Warres,

Speake tearmes of manage to thy bounding Steed,

Cry courage to the field: And thou hast talkt

Of sallies; and retires, trenches, tents,

Of Pallizadoes, frontiers, parapets,

Of basilisks, of canon, culuerin,

Of prisoners ranome, and of souldiers slaine,

And all the current, of a heddy fight,

Thy spirit within thee hath been so at war,

And thus hath so bestird thee in thy sleepe,

That beds of sweat hath stood vpon thy brow,

Like bubbles in a late disturbed streame,

And in thy face strange motions haue appeard,

Such as we see when men restraime their breath,

On some great sodaine hast. O what portents are these?

Some heauy busines hath my Lord in hand,

And I must know it, else he loues me not.

Hot. What ho, is Gilliams with the Packet gone?

Ser. He is, my Lord, an houre agoe.

Hot. Hath Butler brought those Horses from the Sheriffe?

Ser. One Horse, my Lord, he brought euen now.

Hot. What Horse? a roane, a crop eare, is it not?

Ser. It is my Lord.
